

We have stayed with Signal for several years now as we like their attitude and customer service.

Price is, of course, important and in our experience, Signal has always provided us with a good deal coupled with a consistently courteous and considerate response whenever we have a query or require help.

Too many telecoms companies will promise you the earth until you have signed a contract, then they never want to hear from you again until your term is coming to a close.

Signal are not like that, they have proved friendly and helpful whenever we contact them for assistance.

Our personal experience of them as a telecoms provider over the years has been a good one.